

SoundSpace Online

The “go to” place for online information, resources and learning about hearing loss

Good quality, readable and usable information and resources on hearing loss are often in different places and can be hard to find. This is where SoundSpace Online comes in, it is a newly launched website which brings together a wide range of practical information and resources on hearing loss in one place.

SoundSpace Online:

- Contains and will continue to include up-to-date, concise, evidence-based and balanced information & resources on hearing loss, to improve accessibility,
- Is developed with input from those with hearing loss, families and professionals in the field of hearing loss, e-learning, education and research;
- Has been created for those with hearing loss, their families, professionals working directly and indirectly with them, and anyone else interested, for a national and international audience!

Go and have a look – we are sure you will find something interesting!
